

USAID's Direct Budget Support to Ukraine

Russia's invasion of Ukraine in February 2022 has caused devastating economic and social consequences for Ukraine and its people. The International Monetary Fund estimates that the Government of Ukraine (GOU) requires $5 billion per month to continue to operate. In response, the U.S. Government (USG) has appropriated $13 billion in direct budget support (DBS) for the GOU as of October 2022.¹ These contributions administered through USAID support non-security general budget expenses, including salaries for civil servants, teachers, health care workers, and other government employees, and social spending needs, including pension expenses and payments to internally displaced persons.

World Bank Trust Funds

USAID uses the World Bank's trust funds to support the GOU, so funds can directly flow into the GOU's budget. The World Bank, development partners, clients, and other stakeholders commonly use trust funds for mutual strategic priorities. The World Bank establishes trust fund financing arrangements with contributions from one or more donors, through a multi-donor trust fund (MDTF) or single-donor trust fund (SDTF).

The World Bank is generally responsible for supervising the activities financed under its trust funds. Supervision includes accounting, financial audits, and progress reporting. The World Bank provides the reports to donors, including USAID. In addition, donors may request a financial audit and review or evaluate activities financed by some trust funds.

USAID's Office of Inspector General (OIG) and the World Bank's oversight bodies have formal agreements to collaborate on work of mutual interest. These agreements enhance oversight through regular consultation and information sharing.
